Felicitations Message for
“THE BENGAL VISIONARIES”
Magazine of The Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong
(BCCCHK)

Draft Message:

It is my great pleasure to extend my warmest congratulations to the Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong (BCCCHK) on the publication of “THE BENGAL VISIONARIES”. This magazine celebrates the achievements and contributions of Bangladeshi entrepreneurs in Hong Kong, whose resilience and innovation have contributed to our city's success as an international business hub.

Hong Kong and Bangladesh share a robust and growing economic partnership. This was recently highlighted at the 11th Belt and Road Summit held on 9 and 10 September 2026, where H.E. Khandakar Abdul Muktar, Minister for Commerce, Industries, Textiles and Jute of the People's Republic of Bangladesh, participated as a distinguished speaker at the Policy Dialogue which I chaired. During the Summit, Hong Kong and Bangladesh also signed a new Investment Promotion and Protection Agreement (IPPA). This IPPA will provide greater certainty and protection for investors, facilitate investment flows, and further strengthening the economic and trade ties between the two places. The Agreement demonstrates our shared commitment to regional cooperation and mutual growth under the Belt and Road Initiative.

Leveraging our distinctive advantages under “One Country, Two Systems”.

Hong Kong continues to be the ideal two-way gateway connecting our country with the rest of the world, including Bangladesh. Bangladeshi businesses can make use of Hong Kong's strengths as a “super connector” and “super value-adder” to upgrade and expand their businesses. Against this backdrop, BCCCHK plays a vital role in fostering closer connections between our business communities and creating new opportunities for collaboration.

To all members and readers, your vision and dedication are the driving forces behind our flourishing economic ties. I am confident that with our continued efforts to deepen exchanges and collaboration, the relationship between Hong Kong and Bangladesh will reach new heights and bring even greater promise.

I wish BCCCHK continued success and extend my best wishes to all readers of “THE BENGAL VISIONARIES”.

Message

Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (HKSAR) remains one of the world's leading international financial, trade and logistics centers. Operating under the “One Country, Two Systems” framework, Hong Kong continues to maintain a distinct legal, customs and financial system while becoming increasingly integrated with Mainland China's national development strategies, particularly the Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macao Greater Bay Area (GBA) initiative and the Northern Metropolis Development Strategy. On the other hand, Bangladesh has consolidated her position in the Global Apparel Supply Chain as one of the finest and second largest manufacturers after China. Therefore, Hong Kong is a highly important sourcing, order receiving and logistics hub for Bangladesh's apparel sector, and it is worth noting that apparel sector is the backbone of the country's economy. From this viewpoint, Hong Kong is the striking position for Bangladesh for championing the slogan “Made in Bangladesh”.

With a population of approximately 7.5 million and a highly developed service-oriented economy, Hong Kong serves as a strategic gateway between China and the global economy. For Bangladesh, Hong Kong occupies an important position in economic diplomacy, investment promotion, trade finance, labour mobility and consular engagement. Since my joining as he Consul General of Bangladesh in Hong Kong in May 2025 I have been witnessing vibrant and diversified trading activities of Bangladeshi entrepreneurs in Hong Kong. Not only for dealing in apparel sector but also for trading many other commodity and industrial products the Business Community of Bangladesh have developed their successful endeavor utilizing the Hong Kong's benefit such as strict rule of law in banking sector, pegged and convertible exchange rate, duty free port facilities and smooth customs formalities. I regularly chat with the business community and I found they are quite happy and self contented with their business career in Hong Kong. After listening to their success stories I always felt that there should be a magazine/business directory compiling success stories of the Bangladeshi business entrepreneurs in Hong Kong.

I wholeheartedly congratulate and thank Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong for bringing out such a well timed publication showcasing the Bangladesh and Hong Kong bilateral business accomplishments and prospects achieved through Bangladeshi entrepreneurs in Hong Kong. I believe the magazine “The Bengal Visionaries” will be a useful and handy guide for the international traders and financiers for finding out potential partners from Bangladesh Business Community. This will also provide an insight to develop business concept for dealing business with Bangladesh. I hope the magazine will be time to time updated and will soon launch a digital and apps version.

Message

It's a great pleasure to extend my warmest congratulations and heartfelt greetings to the Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong (BCCCHK) on the auspicious occasion of publishing the business directory, “Bengal Visionaries”.

I deeply appreciate the contributions made by the chamber in promoting trade, commerce, and investment opportunities while supporting the business community in Hong Kong SAR. This timely publication reflects the entrepreneurial spirit of our nation and serves as a vital bridge connecting global business networks.

The recent historic visit of H.E. Mr. Tarique Rahman, Hon'ble Prime Minister of Bangladesh to China has elevated the bilateral and economic relationship between Bangladesh, mainland China, and Hong Kong SAR to new heights. Furthermore, the active participation of Bangladesh in the 11th Belt and Road Summit 2026 reinforced our commitment to regional connectivity, green development, and robust economic integration. Most notably, the landmark Agreement on the Protection and Promotion of Investment (IPPA) between Bangladesh and Hong Kong SAR was officially signed during the opening session of this summit to strengthen mutual investment protection and enhance investor confidence.

Our government is working relentlessly to create an investor-friendly environment, and I sincerely hope that the chamber will continue to strive to strengthen the trade, investment, and economic relationships among Hong Kong SAR, China, and Bangladesh. The chamber is encouraged to work closely with our government departments to drive bilateral trade, while providing stellar support and business services to the global business community.

I wish the publication “Bengal Visionaries” and the Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong (BCCCHK) all the success in its continued quest for excellence.

It is a privilege and honor to share a few words for this special publication highlighting the legacy and achievements of Bangladeshi entrepreneurs in Hong Kong.

Over the past three decades, Bangladeshi businesses in Hong Kong have grown from a few pioneering firms into a thriving commercial presence. Today, the Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong (BCCCHK) proudly represents nearly 100 leading companies across apparel, textile, shipping, logistics, finance, technology, electronics, chemicals, trading, and building materials—contributing to Hong Kong's economy while building strong bilateral trade ties.

Since its founding in 2014, BCCCHK has served as a bridge to connect and support our business community. The Chamber actively helps members find new opportunities, expand their reach, and foster collaboration between Bangladesh and Hong Kong.

Hong Kong's world-class finance, logistics, and global market access—paired with Bangladesh's strong manufacturing base and growing economy—create powerful synergies. By leveraging these strengths, our business community continues to build resilient trade links across Bangladesh, Hong Kong, and Mainland China.

This publication is a wonderful tribute to that shared vision and hard work. It honors those who laid the foundation and serves as an inspiration for tomorrow's young entrepreneurs.

I extend my heartfelt thanks to the editorial team, contributors, and members who brought this milestone publication to life. May the business ties and friendship between Hong Kong, Mainland China, and Bangladesh continue to grow in the years ahead.

Warm regards,

Syed M. Mohiuddin Mohi

Terming the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region's inaugural five-year plan as a historic milestone, foreign consuls general and business leaders based in the city have said the "remarkable balanced and forward-looking blueprint" will make a constructive contribution to strengthening the well-being of the city while boosting its international role.

Congratulating the SAR on unveiling the five-year plan, Anatoly Kargapov, consul general of Russia in the HKSAR, said the SAR government has undertaken substantial work in preparing the inaugural plan, which covers a wide range of economic, social, and development priorities.

Saying that its alignment with the national 15th Five-Year Plan unlocks the city's new industrial, technological, and economic growth frontiers, he said, "I sincerely hope that this five-year blueprint will contribute to the further expansion of trade and investment links between Russia and the SAR."

Russian entrepreneurs are steadily showing their interest in Hong Kong's distinctive advantages as a unique superconnector with the Chinese mainland, he said, adding: "There is no doubt that considerable potential exists for joint projects in the Northern Metropolis, which the plan rightly identifies as a new engine of growth and a platform for deeper integration with the (Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macao) Greater Bay Area."

Hassan Doutaghi, consul general of Iran, termed completing "such a comprehensive and complex undertaking" in less than a year as a notable achievement, particularly in view of the extensive consultation, consensus-building, and consideration of relevant experiences.

"Building upon Hong Kong's longstanding role as a 'meeting place of East and West' and its position as an international hub for trade, finance, shipping and aviation, Hong Kong could further strengthen its international role by developing into a global hub for presenting and connecting the ancient civilizations of the world," Doutaghi said.

By providing a platform for the shared presentation of the world's diverse civilizational heritage, Hong Kong could complement its existing economic functions, promote cultural exchange and people-to-people connections, and further establish itself as a bridge between civilizations and between East and West, he added.

India Club President Lachmandas Nandkumar termed the unveiling of the city's first five-year plan alongside the 2026 Policy Address as a transformative milestone in the city's governance.

"Chief Executive John Lee (Ka-chiu) has delivered a remarkably balanced and forward-looking road map that seamlessly pairs a medium-term economic vision with actionable public policy. By synchronizing Hong Kong's development directly with the national 15th Five-Year Plan (2026-30) while preserving our unique 'one country, two systems' advantages, this blueprint restores clarity and confidence for the global business community and that will significantly boost market confidence and attract global capital," Nandkumar said.

What makes this policy package particularly commendable is its pragmatic focus on high-value growth alongside tangible social progress, he said.

"Measures like targeted tax incentives for key growth sectors, expanding international education and talent hubs, and accelerating the Northern Metropolis are exactly the catalysts needed to sharpen our global competitiveness," he said.

HKSAR government deepen its engagement with the rapidly emerging South Asian region, particularly Sri Lanka, following the announcement of the SAR's first five-year plan, which calls on local enterprises to expand globally.

The recent participation of the delegation of Sri Lanka — a key partner in the Belt and Road Initiative — at the 11th Belt and Road Summit in Hong Kong last week marks a promising start, he said.

"Beyond official visits, there is immense potential to strengthen people-to-people ties through cultural, educational, and tourism exchanges. It can also boost bilateral trade in commodities and tourism. Cross-border trade also offers huge growth opportunities, given Sri Lanka's strength in key exports like tea, cinnamon, gems and jewelry, seafood, and fresh fruits such as king coconuts."

Syed M Mohiuddin Mohi, president of the Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong, termed the introduction of Hong Kong's first five-year plan as "a landmark step that delivers long-overdue strategic clarity."

"By replacing short-term policy cycles with a structured, multi-year road map, the government provides a more predictable path for growth. This forward-looking approach strengthens alignment between Hong Kong and national development priorities — while also protecting the city's distinct strengths under 'one country, two systems', including its common-law system, open market and internationally oriented financial role," Mohi said.

With clear performance indicators and a strong public administration framework, the blueprint offers both global investors and local residents a convincing vision of stability, innovation, and sustainable prosperity for Hong

Yan Han contributed to the story.
